TWO SEA SONGS By Bertin Braly

I AM sick, sick, sick for the sea!
 For a ship on the trackless trail,
 And it's there, there, there I'd be,
 In the rush of the salty gale;
 I am sick at soul for the heave and roll
 When the great waves clamber high
 And the engines ring and the mast-heads swing,
 'Tis sick for the sea am I!

Sick, sick, sick for the sea,
 For once you hear the call
 You'll go, go, go where the salt winds blow
 And the deep sea holds its thrill,
 (Later)

I am sick, sick, sick of the sea
 As I lean on the vessel's rail,
 I don't care, care, care to be
 Where my features are green and pale;
 And you wouldn't believe what the roll and heave
 Of the great waves does to a guy
 Of the meals they bring I can't keep a thing
 And it's sick of the sea am I!

Sick, sick, sick of the sea!
 (Was that the dinner call?)
 Yes, I wanted to go, but now I know
 That once is enough—that's all!

CARRY ON!

ANNOUNCEMENT by navy department officers that, instead of being discouraged by the disaster to the ZR-2 authority for the construction of another huge airship would be sought will receive the endorsement of public opinion. No one knows yet just what caused the destruction of the dirigible upon which so much thought and money was lavished, but it probably was a structural defect of some kind, and as soon as the error is detected work should be started on a new craft, for both on defense and commercial sides the possibilities of air navigation are so great that no nation should neglect to carry on even though the progress is discouraging at times.

The great bridge that spans the St. Lawrence river at Quebec fell into the stream twice just when it was on the point of being ready for service, but those disasters, one of which, the first, was attended with heavy loss of life, did not for a minute check the determination of the people of that great northern city to have an all rail outlet to the south, nor did they cause the public to think that the effort should be abandoned.

Experts were put to work to find out what caused the disasters and to devise means for guarding against repetitions, and construction work was soon resumed. That is the way the government and the people should react to the collapse of the big air craft. At best it was but an experiment on a huge scale and after it is

RUFF STUFF

A news item from Philadelphia says Miss Katherine Peabody discovered a masked man under her bed tonight. She drew a revolver and held him until the police came. It was found that she got a man, the police took him.

We went to a movie yesterday to find out "The Truth About Husband." We could not see where the title and the picture had any connection. On asking the ticket lady about it, she told us we had been looking at another film, the one we went to see had gone the day before.

BELLVIEW

Attended Funeral
 Among those who attended the funeral of Beyri Thorn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Thorn, of Baxter, last Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Abels and children, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey A. Sheets, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. Willis A. Wilson, Conrad Wilson, Mrs. Martha Mason, Mrs. J. R. Lipinski and children, Sant Wilson, Mrs. Maud Wilson, Helen and Harold Wilson, Moward Watson, Miss Marie Danley, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Hoult. The funeral was one of the largest that was ever held in Paw Paw district. Owing to the popularity and high esteem in which the young man was held, several relatives were in attendance from a distance, including Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thorn and three sons of McKeesport, Pa., and Ted Thorn of the U. S. Marines, who is stationed at ascertaining just what the trouble was the research should be resumed with renewed energy and redoubled determination.

FOR EVERY WOMAN

WHETHER or not the women of the world succeed in getting representation on the Washington disarmament conference delegations they are going to have a chance to express their desire for world peace in a way that cannot but be effective.

The National Women's Trade Union League of America has initiated a world-wide demonstration by women for disarmament to be held on Armistice Day, the day that the Washington conference opens.

It is expected that millions of women in every country in the world will participate in the demonstration, the details of which are yet to be worked out.

The purpose as expressed by Mrs. Raymond Robbins, the president of the league is to "strengthen the governments in their desire to disarm by giving unequivocal expression of the women of the world."

This is a call to duty that should challenge the interest of every woman, however humble her station in life.

BOOZE

THE battle between the wet and the dry is raging more or less fiercely all over the world. Even Russia and Germany, faced as they are with the most vital political, financial and social problems are not immune.

A recent sitting of the German cabinet, discussing such important questions as Silesia and reparations, was interrupted to take up the question of the repeal of wartime regulation closing cafes at 11:30 p. m.

The regulation was abolished by a small majority vote after long debate, and each state government will now make its own regulations.

In Russia the liquor question is closely bound up with government finance. Under the pressure of revenue necessity the soviet rulers have amended the dry laws to permit the manufacture and sale of wines made from grapes, fruit or raisins, containing not more than 14 per cent of alcohol. The traffic will be very heavily taxed and is expected to yield a large revenue.

Vodka is still taboo in Russia, although it is problematical how long the soviet regime will resist the temptation to restore it for the sake of its revenue possibilities.

The election of James H. Thomas, cashier of the National Bank of Fairmont, to the chairmanship of Group Six of the West Virginia Bankers' association, which took place at the meeting in Clarksburg yesterday, is a splendid compliment to a young man whose rise in a business in which promotion is usually rather slow is another illustration of the fact that natural ability and hard work still are the basic factors for business success in this country.

American newspaper readers usually smile at the rumor factories that spring up at some point in proximity to great news events which are not readily accessible. St. Augustine was such a center during the period leading up to our war with Spain, Brownsville, and El Paso since then has served the same purpose with regard to Mexican events and the coast towns in Finland have sent out reports about Russian affairs. But that miners' gathering at Marmet seems to be setting new records. This seems to be a sort of stationary Coxy's army entirely surrounded by rumor factories.

There is one aspect of that gathering of miners at Marmet which should engage the attention not only of the authorities, but of the people who make public opinion in this state and this country. Many of the men are out of work and in view of the record of Kanawha county for the past several years the gathering itself was not unusual. But the mere fact that it continues means that some one who has the ear of the men and in whom they repose confidence is lying to them. Who is it, and what is the purpose? Whoever it is is taking a grave risk. A mob like that is very much like some high explosive. It is liable to be touched off without the slightest warning by some trifling jar. And when that happens the results are usually frightful.

Business is getting better. The commercial reports have been saying that for some time, and now this opinion is being reflected in the little items in the newspapers telling of prospective resumption of industrial plants. Nothing spectacular has occurred along that line yet, but that is the best feature about it. A permanent upward movement is bound to start slowly.

Worth While Bible Class
 The Worth While Bible class will meet this evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Shroyer in Murray avenue. It is hoped all the members will be present for this lesson as it will be the last lesson before the review of the book of the Acts of the Apostles.

Pleasant Surprise
 On Monday evening of this week a number of friends gathered at the home of Mrs. U. E. Fawcett in Pennsylvania avenue and proceeded to celebrate her birthday anniversary in approved fashion. The lady had planned to invite a few friends in on her own accord, but owing to the illness of a relative, had altered her plans and was very much surprised when the party who were mostly relatives arrived, bringing with them presents and good wishes. Refreshments were served the party and all enjoyed the occasion very much.

Senior Bible Class
 The Senior Bible class members met at the home of Mrs. U. E. Fawcett on Sunday.

Corn and Chicken Roast
 One of the very pleasant happenings of this week was the corn and chicken roast which a number of the Bellview young folks enjoyed on Tuesday evening. Eldora was the chosen destination of the members of the party, who went by automobile. The supper was cooked over a camp fire, and was in every respect. In the party were the Misses Gale Arnett, Hester Stuckey, Louis Rutherford, Florence Rutherford, Messrs. Tiller, Chapman, Earl and Coy Jordan, Bill Baker, Herbert Deaton, Jake Bice, Earl Rutherford and Junior Rutherford.

Quantico Virginia; M. B. Thorn, of Clarksburg, and many others.

Music Club
 The music club was entertained on Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Marion Stuckey in Murray avenue. Although the attendance was not large, and the regular leader was out of town, the girls had a very fine time and enjoyed the music very much as well as the tempting refreshments which were served by the hostess.

Brags Home Bride
 On Monday evening of this week, Carl Swisher, who has been a resident of Bellview for the past several weeks, returned from Mason-town, Pa., bringing with him his bride, who was Miss Mary Cunningham, one of Mason town's most popular young ladies. Mr. Swisher is employed as engineer by the Good Roads Company and the newly weds will reside temporarily with Mr. Swisher's brother, W. P. Swisher, in Bellview avenue.

Sunday Picnic
 Mr. and Mrs. V. B. Tucker, Mrs. L. C. Peterson, the Misses Bertha Poling and Marie Stockert, Messrs. Ralph Huggins and Ray Gillespie, were members of a party who motored to a point near Hundred, W. Va., on last Sunday and spent the day in an old time picnic. A bountiful dinner being served from hampers.

KEENEY GIVES "MOTHER" JONES A "CALLING"

FAIRMONT, Aug. 24.—(Editor The West Virginian.)—According to the press dispatches in the morning papers "Mother" Jones, who is known as a radical talker and agitator, went to Marmet where a lot of miners have assembled for the purpose of making a raid into Mingo county, and advised the men to disband and go home, pointing out the futility of such procedure. For this advice C. F. Keesey, the notorious cussing president of District No. 17, reprimands the aged woman, and he and Mooney set out for the scene of mobilization to try to keep the bunch together. If these reports are true as reported by the papers, Keesey and Mooney should be indicted for inciting riot and put where the men whom they are trying to urge on to violence

Our Very Finest! Rose Room Suits

THE supple quality of the soft pile fabrics so much the vogue, lends inimitable grace to the most classic of the new season's Suits. Duvetyne, chamoytine, neddyne, duve de laine, zeline and tricotine are the fabrics displayed.

Fashioned with the little flare at the sides of the coat, or showing the Cossack influence in the bloused back, the effect is doubly charming.

The most exacting critic of wearing apparel could find no flaw in the handsome fur-trimmed modes presented here. Squirrel, mole, beaver, raccoon and Hudson seal pelts are used in exquisite manner.

And new colors are richly represented in the Autumn collection. Included are Sorrento blue, African brown, Byzantyne, navy, taupe, tobacco, Pekin and black.

This season's Rose Room Suits are noticeably richer, more desirable and greater values than in any season the past five years.
